Guests heard from speakers including Superintendent and Principal Roberto Vaca, Board President Lynn Simmons, CHOICE Representative Justin Bryant and a performance by the Monson-Sultana Honor Choir. The official groundbreaking included the board of trustee members and District 4 Supervisor Eddie Valero, all equipped with gold shovels to mark the beginning of this exciting construction project.

The new buildings are the first in over 50 years. The 10,000-square-foot gym will include air conditioning, which many existing spaces do not. In a typical year, Monson-Sultana has experienced many forced days of inactivity due to extreme heat and poor air quality. This new state-of-the-art facility will provide a space to host indoor sports competitions and maintain activities year round.

The CHOICE CUUBE building supports high level indoor environmental quality with proper daylighting, precise temperature and humidity controls, maximum ventilation, and ideal acoustics to promote an optimal learning environment. This new cutting-edge building will provide the campus with ample space to accommodate student activities and host local events that will enrich the community as a whole.

"The new facility is long overdue and we can't wait for students to take advantage of it. Here at Monson-Sultana, we believe in commitment to success." – Roberto Vaca, Superintendent/Principal
